EDITOR'S PREFACE

The Massachusetts College of Art is an important step in our creative development. During the four brief years here at the College, we form and improve our artistic opinions as well as master the skills necessary for future careers.

I am certain that each student takes a great deal of pride in his artistic endeavors. I believe that we as fellow students should take equal pride in our college and its activities.

It behooves the student to support and participate in the Student Association. A greater student participation promises a more rewarding year of activity, and through the various Student Association events the student gains a richer appreciation for the College.

Sincerely,

James Stamatelos

Dr. Robert L. Bertolli, President

GREETINGS TO THE STUDENT ASSOCIATION!

Massachusetts College of Art has always found in its Student body an exciting source of leadership as it worked out its program for the college year.

Traditional Student Association events, inaugurated during the first year of the college 93 years ago, are supplemented by programs of present interest and importance. These constitute a source of enrichment for the entire college and are of real value to all.

This year's officers of the Student Association are especially enthusiastic and inventive in their plans. Every student is vital to your Student Association. Bring your ideas, your cooperation and your talents to them in what really is a complicated and involving task, that of planning many different and important events for you and the college.

1966-1967 should see the realization of many of MCA's plans and hopes. The administration and the faculty are anxious that your four years at MCA be fruitful and memorable. Your energetic and cooperative participation in all school activities and those of the Student Association will help to make it so.

Every good wish,

Robert L Bertolli

Dr. Henry A. Steeger, Dean

DEAN'S MESSAGE

A student recently summed up his thoughts in this way:

"I am here,
but I don't know where I am.
I know where I came from,
but I don't know where I'm going.
I know my name,
but I don't know who I am.
I'm living the 'happiest days of my life,'
and I'm crying."

Such tensions form the continuing drive of students for new perceptions of themselves and their world; such tensions color the educative process and provide the unpredictable exchange, the flash of understanding, the initiation of a concept to be examined, shaped, and polished.

But no student should claim the gain of understanding as the product of a single experience or of his sole perception. Maturation can only come from the interaction of those concerned with similar problems. I urge that you look beyond your personal needs and contribute to the growth of all. The Student Association is a worthy means.

Henry A. Steiger

Dr. Kathryn A. Coghlan, Dean of Women

DEAN OF WOMEN'S MESSAGE

What makes a college? It is made primarily by active, alert minds functioning on intellectual and artistic levels. It is made in academic and studio classes where interchange of ideas, development of techniques, and growing awareness of one's capabilities produce the enlivened and enlightened spirit which alone is the aim of education.

Yet there is another aspect of personality which is necessary in college, the social aspect. Centuries ago Aristotle wrote, "Man is by nature a social animal." Now as we enter the final third of the twentieth century, we still accept the validity of this statement.

The center of our active social life is the Student Association. Conscious of the many interests of students, the Association this year has scheduled a series of events including lectures, dances, musical evenings, and a film series. By joining in these activities, you will bring a balance into your college life. I hope, therefore, that you will actively support and participate in the programs of the Student Association.

Katherine A. Coghlan

STUDENT ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

It is my sincere hope that this year will be one of increased activity in the college program. With the cooperation of both our advisors and the President of the college the new program promises to be one of the most successful ever. Final success, of course, depends upon you, the student. The Student Association is formed for your benefit. It is through this body that you have a voice in the functions of the school. I, and the rest of my staff, hope that you will take advantage of this association and let your ideas be known, for it is in the demonstration of your interest that final success can be realized.

Matt Annantuono

HISTORY OF MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGE OF ART

In 1966, Massachusetts College of Art enters its ninety-fourth year of service in the field of art education.

The factors that combined to bring about the establishment of Massachusetts College of Art in 1873 are apparent as one visualizes the Commonwealth of that day. Here was a state which was pre-eminent in education and in intellectual pursuits of every sort; it had organized the first public school system, founded the first college, and established the first normal school in this country; and Massachusetts authors—Longfellow, Lowell, Emerson, Holmes, Hawthorne—brought its culture to full fruition shortly before the Civil War. In addition, Massachusetts factories and mills led the nation in the production of many manufactured commodities, especially textiles and shoes. From these two strands, the intellectual and the industrial, was woven the fabric that was Massachusetts; and the tradition of educational leadership, combined with industrial necessity, led to the founding of Massachusetts College of Art.

By 1870, the rapidly expanding economy of the state required workers with basic art skills. The Legislature of 1870, in response to a petition pointing out that need, made drawing a required subject in all public schools of the Commonwealth.

To meet the subsequent demand for trained drawing teachers, the Massachusetts Normal Art School (now Massachusetts College of Art) was established three years later. On November 6, 1873, the first students, "thirty-nine gentlemen and sixty-eight ladies" were enrolled. "The course of study was devised to meet the needs of the hour," and every change in the curriculum during the past ninety years has reasserted this aim of its founders and of its first principal, Mr. Walter Smith, long associated with industrial art education in England.

Although the original purpose of the institution was to train future teachers and supervisors of art, other art needs within the Commonwealth were soon recognized, and the curriculum was enlarged and broadened to include several areas of specialization. The expansion in offerings was the direct result of cognizance that well-trained designers were needed in the industries of the State. Further, there was a growing interest in the profitable use of advertising by the industries with an extended use of advertising design which was made possible by the advances in reproduction methods and printing. These factors reflected perceptibly in the curriculum of the School and have remained as a marked influence through the years. National and international recognition of the fine quality of the school's achievements followed during its first decade of existence.

Ever-increasing enrollment forced it out of its original quarters in Pemberton Square, Boston, to the Deacon House on Washington Street. From there it moved to a new building on Newbury and Exeter Streets, where larger accommodations gave the administration opportunities for greater development and progress. Fifty years of vital growth ensued.

In 1924, the Massachusetts Board of Education authorized the awarding of the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education to graduates of the Teacher Education department.

In September, 1930, the school moved to its present functionally designed and equipped building.

With war threatening in 1941, the administration, faculty, and students recognized the emergency, and changes conforming to the existing and pending needs were introduced. The school and its graduates can well be proud of the years 1941 to 1945. Cooperation with the Armed Services and War agencies made an impressive record. In March, 1943, the school was given a special "Office of Civilian Defense" Award in recognition of its outstanding war achievements.

At the termination of World War II, a program for veterans was introduced. The school is proud of the sincere application to study which was made by those veterans who entered the school under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

Under postwar organization, the school was faced with the challenge of numerous applications for admission, coming from all parts of the United States and a number of foreign countries.

The maximum facilities of the institution were made available to a greatly increased enrollment.

Authorization was granted by law on February 4, 1950 for the conferring of the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree. On June 4, 1950, the graduates from the Departments of General Design, Drawing and Painting, and Fashion Design and Illustration were recognized by the awarding of this new degree. In 1954, the first graduates of the Ceramic Design department received the B.F.A. degree.

By an Act of the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the school officially became Massachusetts College of Art effective July 27, 1959.

The art profession is both exacting and challenging. Practitioners in this field who have had the advantages of adequate education and experience can realize a profitable and worthwhile life. Massachusetts College of Art graduates have proved this by their distinctive achievements in Fine Arts, Advertising Design, Industrial Design, Book and Magazine Illustration, the Fashion field, Crafts, Teaching at all levels, and in community endeavors.

REQUIREMENTS FOR PROMOTION AND GRADUATION

1. A system of quality points is used at Massachusetts College of Art. Under the system, grades will be given the following values: A — 4, B — 3, C — 2, D — 1, E — 0.

2. The number of quality points received in a course is determined by multiplying the semester hours of credit in the course by the value of the grade earned. (E.g., an A earned in a three semester hour course will result in twelve quality points.) The average is computed by dividing the total number of quality points by the total number of semester hours.

3. The following averages must be earned for promotion:

Freshman year, 1st semester	1.0
Freshman year, 2nd semester	1.5
Sophomore year	1.75
Junior year	2.0
Senior year	2.0

Students with averages less than those cited must withdraw from the college unless permission to repeat the year is given by the Director of the Division of State Colleges on the recommendation of the President for such reasons as illness, home difficulties, etc.

4. Incomplete grades must be made up within eight weeks after the opening of the following semester. (No course may be marked "incomplete" unless 80% of the work has been done at the time of the discontinuance.)

5. The determination of quality points is made at the end of each College year and, excepting when the year is repeated, the number of points is not affected by grades in courses subsequently taken and passed.

6. "E" grades can never be removed, but the subjects in which they have been received must be repeated and passed, or in the case of electives, other approved courses must be taken and passed either in approved summer sessions, or when possible during the regular college year. Continuing subjects, in which "E" grades have been received, must be successfully repeated before the student may take advanced work.

7. Students who withdraw properly from the college within the first four weeks of a semester will receive no grades for course work. Those withdrawing within the fifth to twelfth weeks will receive grades of W. P. (withdrew passing) or W. F. (withdrew failing.) Those withdrawing within the thirteenth to sixteenth weeks of a semester will receive regular grades for course work.

PLANNING AND PARTICIPATION IN SOCIAL EVENTS

The Student Association of the Massachusetts College of Art is pleased to provide the following information as a guide for the planning of college social events.

The College encourages students to organize and hold social functions, provided that these functions are conducted within the bounds of good taste and in conformity with socially accepted standards. Social organizations in this college have an obligation to promote fine standards and to provide effective social training for their members.

We hope, therefore, that you will recognize the value of this guide, and that you will be eager to use it as a key to successful social functions.

We are indebted to Cues, a booklet provided by the University of Massachusetts, for many suggestions which have been incorporated into this guide.

I. POLICY AND PROCEDURES FOR SCHEDULING EVENTS

A. All social functions which are sponsored by the College or by any of its organizations, whether on or off College facilities, are subject to College regulations. Failure to abide by these regulations can result in cancellation of the event.

B. Each class, organization, and club of the College shall submit to the Dean by the first Monday in April a list of its proposed activities for the following school year.
The list should include the following:

1. Name of organization
2. Names of students in charge
3. Nature of function
4. Date of function
5. Location

The list must be signed by the advisor(s) and submitted in duplicate.
From these lists will be prepared the college calendar for the coming year. The calendar will be published and distributed to the incoming students in September.

C. Three weeks before the actual date of the function, forms calling for more detailed information are to be obtained from the Dean's office, made out in duplicate, and returned to the Dean.
When approval has been granted, one copy is returned to the organization to be retained in its files.
A sample of this form is shown.

II. FACULTY ADVISORS

Each student organization must have one or more members of the faculty as advisor to the group.

The advisor represents the college administration and will expect the group to see that its activities are in keeping with the objectives of the organization and of the College.

It is the responsibility of the student organization to keep its advisor informed of all meetings, to seek his help and advice, and to recognize his importance to the group and its activities.

III. SOCIAL CHAIRMEN

A. The College recommends that every social event have a designated social chairman whose function is to plan interesting and rewarding activities.

A social chairman, therefore, must possess initiative, enthusiasm, sustained interest, and organizing ability.

B. Some general hints for effective leadership are:

1. Use committees, but do not expect committee members to operate without your supervision.
2. Consult your faculty advisor frequently not only for assistance and advice but also to keep him informed of your progress.

C. The social functions of the College include teas, receptions, masquerade parties, dinner dances, and informal, semi-formal, and formal dances.

IV. CHECKLIST FOR SOCIAL CHAIRMEN

A. Outline your activity program early enough so that you can register the event and plan it carefully.

The date should be carefully considered in order to avoid serious calendar competition for attendance and to secure a desirable facility. The S. A. Calendar will be used to determine appropriate dates. This calendar is kept in the office of the Dean.

B. Plan your budget, both income and expense. Be sure of the prices of everything purchased and of the hours for the band and for meals. No activity may exceed its allocated budget.

C. Write down all arrangements that need to be made and select committees that will be reliable and responsible. Some suggested committees are:

Publicity and promotion
Decorations
Music
Program
Hospitality
Refreshments
Clean-up

Check often with the committees to make sure that they know what to do and how to do it. Try to include as many people as possible in the arrangements for the event. Don't do it all yourself. A chairman's job is to coordinate and supervise.

D. Arrange for a police officer to be in attendance at large functions. These arrangements may be made through the function manager of the hotel or directly with the police station in the area.

E. Make proper arrangements for your guests.

1. Report to your organization who the guests will be, and make sure that the members are briefed as to the courtesy to be extended to them.
2. Arrange for someone to meet the guests at the door, introduce them, and show them where a place is provided for them to be comfortable.
3. Invite the guests to participate in the activities.
   If refreshments are provided, be sure to serve the guests first.
4. Encourage your members to introduce themselves and their dates, have various members available for conversation, and be sure the members of the group say "good night."

F. Social chairmen should make plain to their membership the responsibility of each member to be on time.
It is a discourtesy to guests and to your organization to have to wait for late arrivals.

G. Hold an evaluation session with your committees the day following each function. Obtain an EVALUATION OF STUDENT EVENTS form at the Dean's office. Submit a completed form to the Dean within one week after the social event.

V. COMMITTEES AND THEIR DUTIES

The committees whose duties are outlined below will help make a social function a success.

A. Hospitality Committee

1. Assign greeters.
2. Plan receiving line, if necessary. The receiving line should be near the door but out of the line of traffic.
3. Assign members to take guests through the receiving line to tables provided.

B. Music Committee

1. The success of a dance very often depends on the quality and performance of the band.
2. A list of previously hired bands may be obtained in the Student Association office.
3. It is necessary to audition the band in advance. This can be done by means of a tape.
4. Make certain that the committee and the band leader agree on when the band is to begin to play, the kind of music for dining and for dancing, and the number and length of breaks that the musicians will take.
5. Complete payment of the band should be reserved until the end of the event in order to insure an enjoyable evening.

C. Refreshment Committee (particularly for teas and receptions)

1. Plan refreshments, decoration, flowers, napkins, and candles. Assure appropriateness by checking with advisors. Be sure to remove all containers connected with preparations.

2. Assign members to replenish teapot and coffee urn as well as to supply fresh cups, plates, and silver.

3. Assign members to remove used dishes.

4. Invite in advance a faculty member, advisor, or member of your organization to pour.

5. Members without specific assignments should circulate among guests to take care of those who are unattended and to relieve bottlenecks.

D. Publicity Committee

1. Publicity and promotion are important to a successful activity.

2. Care should be taken that the information disseminated is correct and precise.

3. The College regulations concerning signs and posters should be carefully observed.

VI. INVITATIONS

A. Invitations should be sent out at least two weeks in advance for informal functions and at least three weeks in advance for formal occasions.

B. Invitations should be written in the third person on small size white notepaper. A sample invitation is as follows:

> The Sophomore Class > of the > Massachusetts College of Art > requests the pleasure of your company > at a tea > to honor the > Freshman Class
> on Monday, the tenth of September > at three o'clock
> College Cafeteria

C. For more detailed information on invitations for specific events, be sure to consult an up-to-date book of etiquette. These are available in the College library.

VII. FACULTY GUESTS

A. Faculty guests should be invited to all social events of the College. You will find that their presence will add to the success of your party. Faculty members are pleased to be invited; they welcome the opportunity to know the students socially.

B. The following faculty members should be invited to all College functions:

1. President of the College, Dr. Robert L. Bertolli and guest.
2. Dean and Mrs. Henry A. Steeger.
3. Dean of Women, Dr. Kathryn A. Coghlan and guest.

C. At large traditional functions such as the Masquerade Ball, it is customary to invite the entire faculty.

D. To smaller functions run by a class or a club, the respective faculty advisors should be invited.

E. To some of the large annual events, all the faculty class advisors are usually invited.

F. It is important to treat these honored guests with courtesy and respect and to provide for their enjoyment by observing the following:

1. Send out invitations well in advance of the date of the event and advise about the proper dress.
2. If you wish, order flowers for some of the guests. (The usual courtesy is to telephone in advance to ask the color of the dress to be worn and order accordingly.)
3. Arrange adequate coat rooms and rest rooms for guests.

4. Provide transportation, if necessary. It is gracious, though not compulsory, to offer transportation to a single woman guest.

5. Be SURE to be on hand to greet the guests when they arrive. Greet them by name so that they will know they are expected.

6. Check back with the guests at least three or four times during the function to be sure that they are enjoying themselves.

7. Be sure that the function ends on time.

8. Have committee members on hand personally to thank the guests for coming and to bid them "good night."

VIII. REGULATIONS CONCERNING DRESS

The designation given to the social function indicates the kind of dress to be worn.

A. Formal: Men, Tuxedo; Women, Formal gowns.

B. Semi-formal: Men, Dark business suit, white shirt and tie; Women, Formal floor length gown or cocktail length dress.

C. Informal: Men, Slacks, sports jacket, shirt and tie; Women, Simple afternoon dress.

IX. ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

Undergraduate students, regardless of age, are not permitted the use or possession of alcoholic beverages at any College sponsored function.

CONCLUSION

The social schedule of a college may have a great deal to do with the spirit and enthusiasm for the college.

A successful social program highlights the experience of group living and makes college life more enjoyable.
